ANNUAL REPORT & NEWSLETTER

Letter from the President—Sherm Carlson

With the close of the 2016-2017 fiscal year on June 30, 2017, REA³D has positioned itself to be one of the major non-profits in the greater Proctor community. No, we're not up there yet with the millions in assets that continue to support the broader, highly respected Duluth Superior Area Community Foundation "down the hill"...(but they did have the advantage of having many "decades head start" on us).

That being said, the Board is proud to announce that we have now surpassed $300,000 in assets, an endowment upon which investment earnings are generated to support local school and community initiatives. While not formally stated, our mission remains "to raise money to spend money" as we support these worthy causes. This annual report highlights a few of them.

In raising these funds, I wish I could relate in greater detail the personal conversations I've had with businesses and individuals whose spirit of generosity has left me awestruck. Upon closure of an event, I try to allow an opportunity for a business "to bow out" the following year, having become aware of the numerous requests of similar nature made weekly. My "would you prefer to not see my smiling face again at this time next year?"...is almost always met with a response of "we're just glad to help out."

To clarify, the list of donors listed herein are within the timeframe listed, with subsequent offerings after that date to be recognized at this time next year. We again thank those of you who supported us through your participation in any of the three past year's fund-raising events (July Golf Outing, October Depot Tasting Event, or February "REA³D by Candlelight Dinner") or a direct donation.

In the coming months, we hope that you will sense our presence beyond what has primarily been a school focus to one with a broader community outreach. As we search for opportunities to partner with other non-profit initiatives and public entities, we continue to invite grant proposals that fall within the scope of our mission. If in doubt, I welcome all inquiries on an informal basis.

As a recognized past supporter of REA³D, please enjoy the pages that follow.

REA³D by Candlelight Dinner with Featured Speaker and Author, Sam Cook

The REA³D by Candlelight Dinner will be held February 23, 2018 at Blackwoods Banquet Center in Proctor. Social hour will begin at 5:00 PM with dinner served at 6:30 PM. As always, guests can enjoy a sumptuous dinner of Filet Mignon and Pan-Fried Walleye or a Roasted Vegetable Pasta option. The silent, live and dessert auctions will tempt those willing to support REA³D's fundraising efforts. To top off an already exciting evening, the board is elated to announce Sam Cook, local author, as its keynote speaker.

Cook's everyman approach to writing for the Duluth News Tribune has captured outdoors enthusiasts as well as those who prefer not to venture out into nature's majesty. When Pat Toor Lowe heard he would be speaking, she excitedly proclaimed, "I read his column every day it appears. He makes you feel as if you are right there with him in his writing." He has been a featured speaker in journalism classes, at conferences, and is an award-winning journalist.

He and his wife Phyllis, long-time REA³D supporter and retired Proctor Public Schools social worker, have travelled extensively, and this proud father of two has also written about his love for family and community in his books and columns.

Tickets will sell-out quickly for this event, so do not delay to purchase your tickets available from any REA³D board member. You may also contact Sherm Carlson 391-0096 or Lynn Peterson 391-3825.

Thank You ISD 704 Faculty and Staff

The REA³D Board of Directors would like to recognize the ISD 704 Faculty and Staff for their generous contributions of $4781 during the 2016-17 school year.

Second Annual Golf Scramble: July 16, 2017

Despite the unseasonably chilly afternoon, combined with a brisk wind off of Lake Superior, this year's golf scramble held at Grandview Golf Links was another success. This year's event featured fifteen teams, which was more than double the past year's seven.

Teams enjoyed the friendly rivalry as they competed for bragging rights in a variety of hole sponsored events. Generous hole sponsors included P.Lindmeyer Distributing, Carlson Duluth Company, Derailed Bar & Grill, Proctor Collision Center, and Duluth Plumbing Supply. Other prize and cash sponsors included Grand View Golf Links, Buffalo House Bar & Restaurant, Mr. D's Bar & Grill, Bent Paddle/Frost River, Proctor Builders, and Mark Hughes Family. Without their benevolent sponsorship, this event would not have been a success. Additional non-golfing guests joined the fun following the golfing, where the Buffalo House served a sumptuous, grilled steak dinner. This is becoming a must attend event for everyone, and plans for next year's event are already in the making. Be sure to watch for registration information in the spring newsletter, and remember to support our wonderful sponsors.

Lynn Dart Nelson “Anyone Can Give”

To spend just a few moments with Lynn Dart Nelson, financial advisor for Waddell and Reed, is to experience a determined woman who is gracious, generous, and dynamic. At a time in life when many people think about retiring, Lynn instead recently hired a personal coach to “hold her accountable for her actions.” She is a woman of action, and she advises others to “keep your ears open to listen for those in need; there are so many ways to give.”

This long-time REA³D supporter credits her parents for teaching her about the value of giving back to her community. As she spoke about Proctor and Proctor High School (1966 graduate), she was filled with immense pride. Her grandmother was a teacher and began the first PTA in Proctor in 1924. Her grandparents instilled a love of reading in their children and grandchildren, and books were gifts. She vividly remembers her father sitting in an overstuffed chair, eating popcorn (with real butter), reading The History of the Pony Express. She fondly credits, Mr. Jim Bernard, public speaking instructor at Proctor High School with providing her with skills she still uses in her everyday life.

The Lynn Dart Nelson Scholarship began at Proctor High School ten years ago when Dr. Diane Rauschenfels inspired her to provide a scholarship earmarked specifically for a senior girl who is not an “A” student. The scholarship criteria is to assist a girl who is hard-working, who will enjoy college, and graduate. Lynn recalls that when she first went to college, she was not as dedicated as she should have been, but when she returned to college in her twenties, she was serious about her education. This commitment led Lynn to earn her financial advisor license in 1985, commuting to Bloomington for ten days and ultimately passing a grueling eight-hour exam.

While studying at UMD, Dr. George Rapp, anthropology professor, provided her with the opportunity to participate in a five-week dig around Tel-Aviv. For the first time in her life, she understood how discrimination felt. It opened her eyes to the world. This experience led to a life-long love of travel that she has shared with her family, including her daughter, Kristen who has been deployed to Iraq. Lynn and her husband Brad also took their granddaughter to South Africa on a hunting expedition. They stayed in a Zulu village and lived in a hut for a week.

Lynn was on the board of directors for the Boys and Girls Club, and she continues financial support to this worthwhile organization. Her husband, also committed to community involvement, was instrumental in initiating the Salvation Army challenge. When she saw the “adopt a highway” signs, she had a revelation. Why not adopt a classroom? She adopted a second grade classroom, and each month purchased a gift box for students which included a box of 64 Crayola crayons (she always wanted a box for herself), along with a birthday cake for the class to enjoy.

With each experience Lynn mentioned, she credited others for what she has learned. Her advice to others is to get involved. “Interact and feel as if you have touched someone. Anyone can give.”

“Community Service Is an Important Value of Mine”

As REA³D’s newest board member, Dehlia Seim is true to her words. After attending her first Candlelight Dinner last winter, she was excited to learn more about what REA³D does. When the newsletter announced an opening on the board, she “jumped on the chance to apply.” She recognized that REA³D clearly fills a need to provide endowments and gifts to the community and provide a link for alumni, community, and current school personnel. She has been involved on a number of boards including Cook County Whole Foods Co-op, WTIP Radio in Grand Marais, Hartley Nature Center, and the 11th District Bar Association. Presently, she serves on the City of Duluth Charter Commission, and Proctor’s Staff Development Committee.

Graduating as valedictorian (as she puts it in a hard fought battle with the salutatorian), she then graduated from Gustavus Adolphus College with a degree in English before she earned her law degree from William Mitchell College of Law in St. Paul. Currently, Dehlia is a real estate attorney at Fryberger, Buchanan, Smith & Frederick and her husband Pete is a captain for the Duluth Fire Department. Her two daughters Berit (Bay View first grader) and Elinor (ECFE student) also support REA³D events, and Dehlia added that “we love Bay View, and so do our kiddos.” The family enjoys the small town community feeling that Proctor offers.

Her mission is to “facilitate more awareness of the organization—what it has done and what it can do.” She looks forward to help streamline REA³D’s mission and serve more people. She has already proven to be a valuable board member, and we wholeheartedly welcome her and her family to the community.

Social Media Serving the “Greater” Proctor Community

If you have ever wanted to attend a Proctor Rails event, but you were on the other side of the country or world, this REA³D sponsored project may be the answer to your dilemma. With support from the REA³D Foundation, the Irving Foundation, Heritage Windows and Doors, Tamarack Materials, and other cooperative sponsors, Rails TV has brought live events to excited viewers.

PHS Principal Tim Rohweder and Media Specialist Ted Kiefat met representatives from Fargo Stanley High School at a TIES conference. They continued their communication after the conference to investigate how to bring this service to PHS. Although the program appeared to be cost prohibitive with a $25,000 price tag, these two frugal shoppers were undaunted. They transformed the back of the Crossing (former LMC) at the high school into a viable studio and sound booth. The transformation is impressive with a green screen, sound panels, and high-tech equipment.

Rohweder stated that “the purpose of Rails TV is three-fold. First, we want to promote our students and the activities we provide for any and all to see, so they can view the awesome things that are happening at our school and the great hard-working kids we have here. Second, we want to provide an opportunity for those who cannot attend activities a way to watch their son/daughter/relative, etc., free of charge wherever they are. Third, we want to provide an authentic learning experience for our students that can translate into potential career opportunities right out of high school.” Because Rails TV broadcasts over a Youtube channel, this innovative program reaches world-wide access.

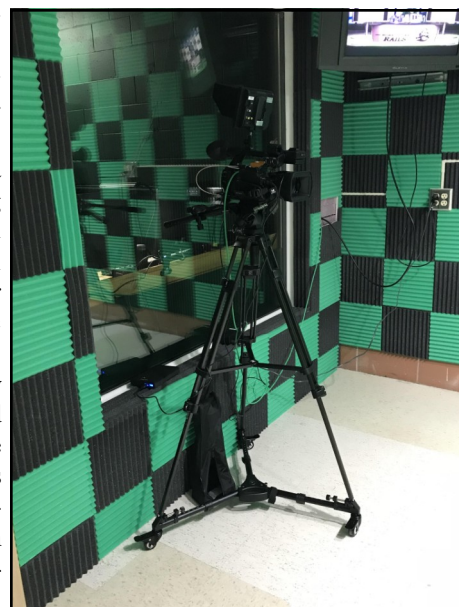

Currently approximately fifteen students are consistently involved with Rails TV on a volunteer basis. As the word has spread that students get into games free and get to “hang-out” with their principal, interest is growing and not just in Proctor. My9 has contacted the school to see if PHS students would like the opportunity to intern with them. Local colleges have also approached this group about broadcasting some of their events. Other future goals of Rails TV are to create video tutorials to help students with core academic areas, how to register for sports online, informative videos for teachers on how effective learning communities run, and promotional pieces for organizations are but a few of the possibilities. It is Rohweder’s vision to open doors for students who want to develop a career path in either broadcasting or mass communication.

To access Rails TV, go to Youtube and search for RailsTV. All broadcasts are archived in Youtube and may be watched at any time. If a person subscribes to the Youtube channel (free), he or she will receive notification whenever a new video or live event will be broadcast. Another way to see the videos is to go to www.railstv.net. REA³D is proud to be a valued sponsor.

Donating Made Simple

Dear Fellow Board Members, Retirees, and Others,

I have good news for me and great news for REA³D! I figured out how I can donate to the Foundation whenever I want, and more importantly, whatever I want. I used my Bill Pay from my checking account from the Proctor Credit Union (one of our generous sponsors). I addressed the envelope:

REA3D Foundation
C/O Steve Anderson
131 9th Ave.
Proctor, MN 55810

When I checked a few days later, smooth as silk, it had arrived. I am happy to say, it will be nice to just push a button to get my donation there! Maybe you can share this information with your friends and neighbors.

Have a great holiday season.

Thanks to your support, we raised close to $4,000

This year's Tasting Event was the most successful to date. The sell-out event lived up to its promise of featuring some of Duluth's finest restaurants and ensuring that everyone left satiated. Liz Proepper, Bay View Elementary teacher stated that her family asked her when the event would occur, and she purchased ten tickets! As Liz shared, "This is one of their favorite evenings." The tasting event was the perfect venue to sample a variety of tasty nibbles and socialize with other benevolent REA³D contributors. Guests registered for two gift baskets that were delivered to the lucky recipients the day after the event. REA³D heartily thanks the area restaurants who so graciously commit time and their delicious fare to make this event a success.
